Debunking myths about Dylan Thomas in an official walking tour of New York's historic Greenwich Village.

Dylan & Caitlin: Copyright JeffTowns

Dylan Thomas was greeted like a rock star when he crossed America to give his legendary readings to huge audiences. In Greenwich Village, he was able to enjoy literary and musical pursuits in more relaxed and less public way. The architecture and atmosphere appealed to him. He wrote to his parents saying that he found Washington Square Park, 'very beautiful.'

St Luke in the Fields inspired Dylan's "Child's Christmas in Wales," he went to visit his pal ee cummings in Patchin Place, and ate his first meal in America (which he said was as big as a month's ration for a British family).

The two hour tour was created in association with Aeronwy Thomas, Dylan's daughter who was able to 'trial' the tour just before she died. The tour guide is Ianto Roberts whose voice has an uncanny similarity to Dylan's. He weaves tales about the extrovert bohemian artists of 1950's Greenwich Village in with stories about Thomas' life and death in New York.

This is the Official Dylan Thomas Walking Tour of New York, a collaboration of the Welsh Government in New York and the family of Dylan Thomas.

The first tour is Sunday March 6th 2011 at 11am. $25.00 per ticket. And every Sunday after that. Bookings and further information www.NewYorkFunTours.com/dylan-thomas

The Dylan Thomas Walking Tour of Greenwich Village was developed by the Welsh Assembly Government in New York in association with Aeronwy Thomas, Peter Thabit Jones, Jane O'Brien, John Pierce Jones, Huw Chiswell, Todd Lefkovic and others. The Welsh Government would like to thank all those involved for their assistance with the project and we wish New York Fun Tours the very best of success with the new commercial venture
